Fairness ordinance dominates council meeting

Both sides agree to 90 day 'cooling off period' to allow the public to review the ordinance

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

It was a little contentious at times, but overall the Stanton City Council meeting last Thursday was quite civil. Both sides of the Fairness Ordinance issue spoke out, freely, about why or why not an ordinance would be needed in the city. While another idea also emerged on how to handle the issue.

Last month Michael Frazier, a resident of Powell County, approached the council with a proposed Fairness ordinance. The ordinance provides protections and methods of recourse for any group which feels they have been discriminated against. Though the ordinance does include disabled persons, those who are pregnant and even those with a possibility of being predisposed through genetics to certain diseases, the ordinance usually is associated with the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender (LGBT) groups.

Members of the audience listened intently at the discussion about the Fairness Ordinance at the Stanton City Council meeting last Thursday.

Last month the council had just received the proposal and postponed any decision. So last week, with about 40 residents and some from other counties in the gallery, the council listened to the public comments.

They city attorney started the conversation by advising the council they could pass such an ordinance if they so desired. However, he also stated that he believed more along the lines of less government being better government.

"It could be overreach-

Chief announces retirement

Stanton Police Chief Kevin Neal announced last Thursday near the end of the council meeting that he would be retiring. His last official day will be July 31.

Neal has been a Stanton Police officer since 1993 and has been the chief since 2004.

The city council voted to take applications for a new officer. The new chief will likely be picked from within the department, usually it is based on seniority. An announcement naming the new chief will probably be made in early August.

Stanton man charged with sex offenses

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

An anonymous call has led to an investigation that a local volunteer firefighter may have been involved in sexual offenses with minors. A Stanton man has been arrested and is now facing a rape charge as well as using an electronic device to procure a minor.

According to an arrest report in the Powell County Sheriff's Office, Deputy Marty Tipton arrested Hunter Gross, 25, of Stanton and charged him with rape second degree, no force as well as prohibitive use of an electronic device to procure a minor, re: sexual offenses. The arrest was made at 11:30 p.m. Sunday night.

According Tipton a call came into Powell County Dispatch approximately two weeks ago about an adult male having met with and attempted to have sex with a 13 year old girl. The caller was apparently a third party, but they identified Gross as the adult male. An investigation was then started.

The arrest citation states that on July 7, while executing a search warrant, Tipton checked Gross' cell phone. The phone was part of the items that could be checked

Former beloved Clay City physician, David Gagnon loses battle with cancer

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

He came to Clay City in 1984 to help pay for his medical school expenses and stepped into and took over the Red River Medical Clinic as a new doctor was needed. But he stayed for 25 years as he grew to love the place and the people. And the people loved Dr. David Gagnon.

Gagnon, who was diagnosed with cancer in 2003, lost that battle last week, passing away at his home. He was 62.

When he was given his diagnosis his prognosis was of approximately five years. In an interview with the Times as he was closing his office in 2009 he said, "The next time I was evaluated they gave me seven years, and the last time ten years." He was in his sixth year of cancer treatment when he retired.

He used his retirement to make the most of life. He hiked the Appalachian Trail, competed in endurance horseback rides and raced 18 marathons. Gagnon believed that a long run could cure just about anything, and that if you did anything three times in a row it became a tradition. And, you shouldn't mess with tradition.

Gagnon was a fighter. His mantra "Cancer Loses Again" was an inspiration to everyone who watched him hike the Sheltoewe Trace in-between chemotherapy treatments and jump out of an airplane with a brain tumor. "Pain is inevitable, suffering is optional," you would often hear him say.

Josh Nolan plans to play, sing 'till the words run out'

By TOSHA BAKER
Times Staffwriter

Josh Nolan's journey toward a musical career went from his first gig playing at a 16 year old's birthday party where he only got to do three songs, to playing with Dwight Yoakam this past weekend.

Nolan said his passion for playing guitar began about 15 years ago. Nolan's dad picked up playing guitar after listening to bands like Lynyrd Skynyrd and Pink Floyd. Nolan said he thought his dad was cool, so he began playing guitar too.

"It started as a hobby and then quickly became a passion," Nolan said.

Nolan said he has been influenced by multiple bands such as Tom Waits, Wilco, Springsteen, Elvis Costello, Leonard Cohen, and The Band.

After his second time in college at Eastern, Nolan discovered song writing. He described it as an ever changing process. He said it is both mechanical and spiritual. Some songs he writes makes the cut while others may never be seen or heard.

"You have to allow yourself to write, even when it's not that good," Nolan said.

Nolan said when he is performing, all the songs are his favorite, but the one that sticks out to him the most is "Till the words run out". He said he wrote most of the song in one sitting then 2 years later he wrote the last few lines and finished it.

Nolan's previous band was called Fair City Lights, though his new band is called Josh Nolan, the name of his Album is Fair City Lights. Nolan said most of the songs on the album were written while with the previous band.

Nolan said one of his favorite memories occurred when he was with his former band. He said they were playing at Battle of the Bands, and had advanced to the finals and about 500 people were watching. There was a break in one of the songs they were playing, during that break the crowd got loud.

"I was like shhh, and all 500 people shut up," Nolan said. "That was a really cool moment."

Though Nolan has come a long way since he began, it has not been without obstacles. Nolan said the hardest part is transitioning from a hobby to a passion then to a profession. He said keeping up with the social media aspect of it has also been challenging.

Nolan said there is a high you get from performing and it's very euphoric. He said coming down from this euphoria back to everyday activities is almost like shock.

"For an hour and a half three nights a week you're on this rush," Nolan said. "And then your back down and you're mowing your yard, feeding the dogs, and delivering flowers to the funeral

The jury listened to testimony about medications found in Epperson's system, some he reportedly did not have a prescription for, and the levels in his system. The defense countered with the delay it took in the state police laboratory, the way the testing was conducted and that the levels were too low to have been the reason for the fatal wreck. They argued it was just an unfortunate accident.

News from the Red River Museum

The picture to the right depicts a “home industry” started in Powell County by Mary L. Hall in 1938. While living in Florence, KY, she started sewing baseballs for the Cincinnati Reds. After moving to Bowen, she started teaching others to sew baseballs until she had 75 to 80 Powell Countians sewing baseballs. She made 75 cents per dozen when she started; this had increased to $2.67 per dozen by 1962. The “wooden horse” (shown right) was the #1 type used to hold the ball while sewing. The “wooden horse” was handmade and costs 50 cents.

The people who sewed baseballs for Mary would bring 12 dozen completed baseballs to Hall’s Grocery on Cat Creek on Thursday night and they would be trucked to Cincinnati, OH the next day. To learn more about Mary L. Hall and her baseball making industry, stop in the Red River Museum.

A few weeks ago, Clifford and Phyllis Miller Meadows of Winchester, KY brought us 3 volumes of Powell County Hi Notes which was the Powell County High School newspaper. These papers are dated Oct., 1935 through March, 1937 and they belonged to Lillian Rountree Miller, mother of Phyllis Meadows. We have really enjoyed reading these and finding names of people we know or have been leaders in our community.

If you went to P.C.H.S. then, or have relatives in school at that time, stop by and read all about them. I am sure that the young people of today will be surprised to find students did a lot of the same activities as they do today.

We would like to thank The Clay City Times for running our news from the museum and we hope you enjoy reading this column. If you have ideas of information you would like for us to write about, please let us know. Remember we are open 12 to 5; Sat. and Sun. from May through Oct.

Trump: Energizes GOP’s base, gives party establishment heart burn

By H.B. ELKINS
Guest Columnist

Donald Trump is not going to be the Republican nominee for president. That’s all but certain. But his presence in the GOP primary is certainly making things interesting.

Trump’s entry into the race has energized much of the party’s base of conservative voters, who are tired of the party’s leaders and establishment pandering to liberal interests, especially on the subject of illegal immigration. But to the powers that be, Trump is a nightmare because he is challenging the party’s hierarchy on a matter where the leaders and their constituency are not on the same page.

By and large, conservatives oppose illegal immigration. They want the nation’s borders secured and illegal aliens prosecuted, and if possible, deported. They are tired of seeing jobs taken away from American citizens by illegals who will work for under-the-table payments. They see the national security threat posed by the flood of people who cross the border illegally. They also recognize that there is a process for immigrants to come here legally, and they want that process honored. They cringe at any mention of amnesty for illegal immigrants already in the country.

On the other hand, the party’s establishment and its big donors turn a blind eye to the problem. They don’t mind the influx of cheap labor. If they can get by with paying illegals less than the minimum wage, they’re all for that. They don’t want to lose their existing labor force, so they favor a system by which people already in the country illegally can get to stay.

Donald Trump is challenging their positions and making them uncomfortable. They don’t want to have to defend their support for “comprehensive immigration reform,” which is code for “let the illegals stay.” Therefore, there have been calls for Trump to tone down his rhetoric and an insistence that he not be allowed to participate in any presidential debates, the first of which is scheduled for next month. They point to all the outreach they’ve been trying to do to court the Hispanic vote, and they fear that Trump will undo all their efforts. It’s interesting that one candidate who hasn’t criticized Trump, Ted Cruz, has Hispanic lineage.

No one, other than an illegal alien, should take any offense at what Trump said. He wasn’t addressing those who have immigrated here lawfully, have all proper documentation, and aren’t breaking any laws. The GOP establishment acts so fearful that Trump will chase Hispanics away from the Republican Party. Don’t they listen when those who came here legally and went through the process as prescribed in law express outrage and resentment at those who came illegally?

Because Trump expressed a strong opinion on a subject most politicians from both parties would rather avoid, he’s suffered some business backlash. His response has been a thing of beauty. When NASCAR announced that it would not hold its season-ending awards banquet at a Trump property because of pressure from the sponsor of its truck racing series, Trump rubbed NASCAR’s nose in it. He said that he would simply keep their sizeable deposit for the use of his facility and then rent it out to someone else and make even more money in the process.

Trump isn’t the ideal Republican candidate. While he may be causing headaches for the establishment and delighting the party’s conservative base in the process, there are significant weaknesses in his candidacy. While he’s certainly not on the list of candidates for whom I wouldn’t vote under any circumstance (right now Rand Paul, Jeb Bush, Lindsey Graham and Chris Christie are the primary occupants of that slate), and he’s not among my favorites (Ted Cruz is head and shoulders above everyone else on that list), I’d certainly have to give strong consideration to him should he survive the primary process.

But that’s not likely. The party hierarchy and the establishment will be gunning for him. They all seem to be gravitating toward Bush, but perhaps this will be the year the Republicans nominate a true conservative after the failures of moderate-to-liberal candidates in the last two presidential elections. If John McCain and Mitt Romney couldn’t win, why should anyone think Jeb Bush can?

In the meantime, it will be fun to sit back and watch Trump make the GOP establishment squirm. It’s time they got the message that the party doesn’t want to be led from the top down, but they want the party’s leaders to reflect the grassroots sentiment. So far, Trump has tapped into that populist sentiment, and the entertainment value is priceless.

Mental Illness haunts and kills countless of Americans

By KIMBERLY BLAKER
Guest Columnist

On July 9, Rep. Tim Murphy (R-PA) appealed to congress, “Let’s no longer turn a blind eye and instead help those who need it the most.” Murphy pointed to the 200 deaths per day by suicide and drug overdose, and the uncountable “slow motion deaths” of millions with serious mental illness (SMI). He asked congressional members, again, to co-sponsor the bipartisan Helping Families in Mental Health Crisis Act of 2015, HR-2646.

The two broader problems with treatment for the seriously mentally ill (SMI) are laws and funding.

Laws created to protect the rights of SMI individuals didn’t take into account that those with SMI, particularly schizophrenia, are often unable to recognize their illness and therefore unwilling to seek treatment, resulting in inability to care for themselves. This is seen in that 35% of the population receiving federal disability insurance benefits is mentally ill.

Moreover funding has dwindled severely. Hospitals shut down while insufficient public funding has impeded development of adequate out-patient programs.

The continuation of these problems stems in part from lack of public understanding of SMI.

There are 3.5 million people in the US with schizophrenia alone, a fate often worse than death. My son, Caleb, was diagnosed three years ago, at the age of 19. His adult life has been spent inside a living hell--literally. The early stage was marked primarily by delusions and paranoia: there was a government conspiracy against him, Lil Wayne and Drake were writing derogatory songs about him, and pimps were trying to kill him. This was only the beginning of a downward spiral.

The first year of treatment showed only mild success. Antipsychotics are relatively fast acting, and if monitored, can be quickly adjusted or changed. But with a shortage of psychiatric beds, he was in and out of the hospital within days, still in psychosis. Further hindering recovery, he was allowed only one 30-minute psychiatric appointment per month.

It should be noted, each episode and the longer in psychosis, the more damage done to the brain resulting in increasing severity and reducing the likelihood of recovery.

This has proven true for Caleb. A year into his illness, he received a message to cut off his ear or toe or to break a leg. In the middle of the night, I awakened to his blood curdling screams. He had jumped 15 feet from a tree fracturing his back. Just prior to this feat, he attempted, unsuccessfully, to silence the commands. He branded his arm with a fork, a scar that remains today. He was admitted for psychiatric care, but released within 7 days with little improvement.

Over the next two years, he is hospitalized with increasing frequency, always released within days. He is paranoid and live in constant fear with the belief his family and friends want to kill him. He hallucinates I say such horrific things to him as, “I’m going to chop off your head,” or “I’ll bury you alive.” He has spent nights sitting on his bed prepared to bolt if I break down the door to kill him.

Six months ago, the television told him he is Jeffrey Dahmer, and the President told him to kill me. My son isn’t violent. But statistics speak for themselves, and psychosis often leads to violent and tragic acts. It was a several day battle to get him hospitalized, and he was released in 3 days in the same condition.

For a few months, his psychosis finally improved. But this rarely lasts. With his paranoia that doctors, pharmaceutical companies, and his family are trying to poison him, he often refuses medication. Recently, Caleb took another downturn. He cannot not comprehend real conversations because the hallucinatory voices are so overpowering. He carries on arguments with these voices, tells the news anchors on TV to shut up because they are talking about him, and is angry with the Pope for something the Pope is doing to him. He insists he is traversing. As a result, there are now two of him, or maybe three, and he doesn’t know which is the real him. He becomes confused and doesn’t know where he is and pleads with me to get him home. I try to reassure him, “you are the real Caleb, and you are safe at home.” It is heartbreaking.

But we aren’t alone. This plays out for millions of SMI people and their families day-after-day, week-after-week, and year-after-year as loved ones spiral further into the abyss.

HR-2646 is far from a complete overhaul of our poor mental health system. But it makes several meaningful improvements. Family access to information about the diagnosis and prescribed treatments for their mentally ill adult loved ones has hindered families’ ability to protect and care for the sick member. This bill will clarify HIPAA so caregivers have access to necessary information.

Also crucial, the bill will require states to authorize assisted outpatient treatment (AOT) for the state to receive Community Mental Health Service Block Grant funds, and expansion of civil commitment criteria.

Other needs are also addressed including the shortage of psychiatric beds, greater use of criminal diversion programs, greater emphasis on evidence-based care, and alternatives to institutionalization.

This bill should not be shelved or watered down. Certain groups are making concerted efforts to remove crucial components. These include anti-psychiatry groups, and organizations focused on general mental wellness rather than treatment for the seriously mentally ill who are the most under served and for whom this legislation was intended.

David Philip Gagnon, M.D., 62, died peacefully in his sleep at home in Richmond on July 8, as a result of a 12-year battle with cancer.

A husband and father, David will be remembered for his commitment to live life fully, whether that meant captaining a sailboat in the Virgin Islands or taking a polar plunge hand-in-hand with his wife the first day of every year.

Born January 13, 1953 in Saratoga, New York, David grew up in Cape Elizabeth, Maine, and graduated from the University of Maine in 1974 and Tufts University School of Medicine in 1981.

A family practice physician, David cared for patients for 25 years at Red River Medical Center in Clay City and Clark Regional Medical Center in Winchester, as well as other area medical facilities.

An outdoorsman and endurance athlete, David hiked the Appalachian Trail, competed in endurance horseback rides and raced 18 marathons. David believed that a long run could cure just about anything, and that if you did anything three times in a row it became a tradition. And, you shouldn't mess with tradition.

David was a fighter. His mantra "Cancer Loses Again" was an inspiration to everyone who watched him hike the Sheltopee Trace in-between chemotherapy treatments and jump out of an airplane with a brain tumor. "Pain is inevitable, suffering is optional," you'd often hear David say.

He will be remembered at the start of every road race, in every retelling of Alice's Restaurant, in every bite of deep-fried turkey, and every time someone leaves the music on just a little too loud.

David is survived by his wife Marcy; daughters Brett and Erin Gagnon; step-daughter, Nikki Adams and her husband Scott and sons Trenton and Tucker; brothers, Damian, Chris and Mark Gagnon; sister, Phyllis Gagnon; father, Philip Gagnon; and his beloved dog Maizy and horses Amos Dubai and Jahara.

He was preceded in death by his mother Helen Gagnon.

A memorial service for David will be planned within the next few weeks. In lieu of flowers, you are invited to send donations to the UK Markey Cancer Foundation, 800 Rose Street, Roach Building CC160, Lexington or The Sheltopee Trace Association, 111 East First Street, Morehead.

Saint Joseph Mount Sterling Offers Tips for Managing Seasonal Allergies

Seasonal allergies are more prominent this time of year than any other season and account for more than 17 million outpatient office visits annually according to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. Aside from the frustrating side effects of seasonal allergies, which include congestion and sneezing, allergies can lead to more serious complications such as sinus infections, ear infections and asthma.

The Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America estimates 50 million Americans (one in five) suffer from all types of allergies.

Although there is no cure for seasonal allergies, Saint Joseph Mount Sterling, part of KentuckyOne Health, is working to raise awareness on how to prevent and treat allergy symptoms. Symptoms can range from a mild annoyance to a severe disruption in daily life and most commonly include sneezing, wheezing, nasal congestion, coughing, itchy/watery eyes and fatigue.

"Many people, especially in our area, experience symptoms of seasonal allergies this time of year," said Brian Glover, DO, KentuckyOne Health Primary Care Associates. "With the help of a primary care provider, a few precautions and an antihistamine, allergy symptoms can be well managed."

Physicians recommend paying close attention to the weather during this time of year.

"Weather can impact how much pollen—the most common seasonal allergy trigger— is carried through the air," said Dr. Glover. "Check the pollen count regularly. On days that it is high, stay indoors as much as possible."

Other tips for reducing allergy symptoms include: delegating outdoor chores to someone who doesn't suffer from allergies and changing clothes and showering after outdoor activities to help rinse away pollen. People may also find allergy relief by using a dehumidifier, along with closing windows and turning on air conditioning.

According to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, seasonal allergies account for more than half of all allergy visits to the physician's office. Antihistamines and decongestants are commonly recommended to provide allergy relief, but some physicians may recommend routine allergy shots in severe cases.

If you suffer from allergy symptoms, a visit to a primary care provider can help determine which type of treatment may be best suited to manage those symptoms.

Dr. Glover is located on 40 South Bank Street in Mount Sterling – for an appointment call (859) 498-2815. To find other providers near you, visit choosyourdoor.org or call 888.570.8092.

New specialty license plate highlights benefits of outdoor recreation

A new license plate will give drivers the opportunity to show their support for the health and well-being of Kentuckians and their environment. First Lady Jane Beshear today unveiled the specialty “Let’s Go Outside” plate that will promote the health and environmental benefits of outdoor recreation.

“Kentucky has one of the highest childhood obesity rates in the nation,” said Mrs. Beshear. “One step to improve the health of our children is to encourage active outdoor play. Being outside will help connect children to the environment, teach them about the earth and the way they impact it, and help them preserve it for future generations.”

Proceeds from the specialty plate will support the work of the Kentucky Environmental Education Council (KEEC) including coordinating the Kentucky Green and Healthy Schools program and certifying professional environmental educators.

“Kentuckians have said in surveys that children not spending enough time outside is a major concern,” said KEEC Executive Director Elizabeth Schmitz. “One of our goals is to encourage children to embrace the outdoors and to teach them the importance of a clean environment for our health and preservation. Do you remember the freedom, creativity, and fun experienced in your childhood during outdoor play with friends and neighbors?” she asked. “Let’s go back to our roots by encouraging today’s children to have similar experiences and to gain the sense of community created by those shared memories.”

The Kentucky Environmental Education Council needs 900 applications, each accompanied by a $25 donation, before the plate will be made available to the public. The 900 applications will exhibit the broad public support for this new license plate and will raise the funds necessary to put the plate into production.

A rendering of the license plate design and a link to download the application are available at www.keec.ky.gov/LetsGoOutside. Submitting the application does not obligate you to purchase the plate, but your donation will be credited toward the purchase of a plate once they are in production.

AMAC backs Kate’s Law; slams sanctuary cities that protect criminal aliens

The sanctuary city murder of 32-year-old Kate Steinle has put a focus on the urgent need to ensure that illegal aliens who commit crimes are deported and don’t come back.

“We must insist that local officials in municipalities such as San Francisco, New York and many other towns across the country, are forced to comply with our nation’s immigration standards; there’s no room for politically correct subterfuge that seeks to protect bad guys,” according to Dan Weber, president of the Association of Mature American Citizens.

Kate Steinle was shot and killed while taking a walk on the waterfront with her father. As Kate was dying in her father’s arms, she pleaded, “Dad, Help me.” Juan Francisco Lopez-Sanchez, an illegal alien with a lengthy rap sheet who had been deported numerous times, was charged with the murder.

“When he reentered the country this time around, Sanchez made a beeline for San Francisco where he knew authorities would look the other way,” Weber said. “And, they did. Sanchez had been picked up on an outstanding warrant for marijuana possession and when he was released, the police decided not to notify the immigration authorities. Now they are playing the blame game in the Bay City with Mayor Ed Lee blaming Sheriff Ross Mirkarimi and Mirkarimi blaming Lee. But the real blame should be on the complex mechanisms and machinations of the law and the blind-eye practices of politically correct sanctuary cities,” Weber said.

The AMAC chief applauded the “Kate’s Law” proposal that commentator Bill O’Reilly laid out for lawmakers on his Fox News program this week and it appears that Congress is listening. O’Reilly reports that he received word from Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell that he liked the idea enough to call a meeting to consider the suggested legislation.

Kate’s Law would impose a mandatory minimum five-year sentence on any illegal alien that is deported and then comes back. “The word mandatory is crucial,” O’Reilly insisted. “There are laws on the books now that are being ignored. Congress must write Kate’s Law so if officials do not enforce the mandatory sentence, they themselves can be prosecuted.”

Weber said that his senior advocacy organization supports the law. “It’s time we show concern for Americans who wish to live their lives in peace. Our sympathy and prayers are for the family of Kate Steinle. While we recognize the plight of individuals and families seeking opportunities in the U.S. who adhere to the rules, we need to demonstrate in a forceful manner that we will not tolerate aberrant behavior and we certainly will not sit by while criminals who’ve gotten into the country illegally get a free ride.”

Josh Nolan has come a long way since playing “Waiting on the Night” at the WSKV studios. last weekend he took part in the Masters Musicians Festival in Somerset where the headliner for the event was Kentucky’s own Dwight Yoakam.

When he’s not playing for a crowd Nolan said he works with is mother at her business, Blessing Floral Design Inc. He said he mostly delivers flowers but also helps out around the shop.

Nolan’s new band includes four members. Chris Brown on bass, Josh Anglin on drums, Andrew Holcomb on guitar, and Nolan who sings and plays a variety of instruments. He also mentioned Cory Nolan who has helped him write songs in the past.

With his band Nolan said he hopes to make this a full blown career.

“I want to make a lifestyle out of it,” Nolan said.

Nolan said he hopes to travel with his band more often and go to more places. He said by this time next year he hopes to be on the road at least three days every week, or a few weeks out of each month.

“If I’m not showing substantial progress by the time I’m thirty or so, I guess I’ll hang up the dream,” Nolan said. “But I don’t intend to let that happen.”

Nolan’s songs can be found on pretty much any music streaming site such as, Spotify, iTunes, Amazon Play, and Google Play.

For anyone interested in seeing Nolan and his band live, they will be playing at Well Crafted—Brews + Bands, at noon, Aug. 8, at Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill, 3501 Lexington Road, Harrodsburg Ky.

Tickets for the event are $25 per person, this fee includes complimentary pint glass, as well as admission to the Village, which grants you access to The Historic Centre, The Farm and The Preserve, with a full day of self-guided and staff-led tours, talks, demonstrations, activities, farm experiences and more.

Early migratory bird season proposed

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommended the 2015-2016 early migratory bird season dates at its quarterly meeting today. All recommendations must be approved by legislators before they become law.

Proposed early migratory bird seasons for 2015-2016 include:

Mourning Dove:
Sept. 1 – Oct. 26; Nov. 26 – Dec. 6;
Dec. 19, 2015 – Jan. 10, 2016

September Canada Goose:
Sept. 1 – 15

Wood Duck and Teal:
Sept. 19 – 23

Teal Only: Sept. 24 - 27

American Woodcock:
Nov. 1 – Dec. 15

Virginia and Sora Rail, Common and Purple Gallinule:
Sept. 1 – Nov. 9

Wilson’s Snipe:

Sept. 16 – Oct. 25; Nov. 26, 2015 – Jan. 31, 2016

Sandhill Crane:
Dec. 12, 2015 – Jan. 10, 2016

In other migratory bird-related business, the commission recommended moving the opening of the September wood duck and teal season from the third Wednesday of the month to the third Saturday. This would grant hunters two weekends of hunting for these species. They also recommended reducing the daily bag limit for common and purple gallinules from 15 to three birds.

Commission members also voted to allow the Kentucky Department of Parks authority to establish turkey hunts on park properties.

In boating and fishing-related business, the commission recommended removing harvest restrictions on flathead catfish on A.J. Jolly Lake in Campbell County.

Words of Wisdom: Famous quotes from Famous Men of God

“The first duty of the gospel preacher is to declare God’s law and to show the nature of sin.” ~Martin Luther

“Let’s quit fiddling with religion and do some- thing to bring the world to Christ.” ~ Billy Sunday

“The preaching that this world needs most is the sermons in shoes that are walking with Jesus Christ.” ~ D.L. Moody

“We should remember that people can go to Heaven without knowing much of the Word of God, but they cannot go to Heaven without knowing Jesus Christ as Savior.” ~Lee Roberson

“God is the God of the impossible, as well as the God of the possible.” ~Lester Roloff

“Dr. Bonar once said that he could tell when a Christian was growing. In proportion to his growth in grace he would elevate his Master, talk less of what he himself was doing, and become smaller and smaller in his own esteem, until, like the morning star, he faded away before the rising sun.” ~D.L. Moody

“There is no failure in God’s will, and no success outside of God’s will.” ~George Washington Truett

“If you have no joy, there’s a leak in your Christianity somewhere.” ~ Billy Sunday

“There are some promises in the Bible which I have never yet used; but I am well assured that there will come times of trial and trouble when I shall find that poor despised promise, which I thought was never meant for me, will be the only one on which I can float. I know that the time is coming when every believer shall know the worth of every promise in the covenant.” ~ C.H. Spurgeon

45 VS 40

45% of Kentucky job seekers look in the newspaper for job openings.

40% look on the Internet.

So if you're looking for a job...or you've got a job opening to tell people about...doesn't it make sense for both of you to meet where you're most likely to find one another?

That's right...in the newspaper.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

In the event the successful bidder desires or elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish an acceptable surety thereon. Said bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest at the rate of twelve (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid. The bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment in order to secure the payment of the balance of the purchase price and said bond shall constitute a prior and superior lien on the property until paid. No bond or earnest month shall be required in the event that the Plaintiffs hereto shall be the purchasers and the bid is less than their adjudged lien.

(B) The purchasers shall be required to assume and pay all taxes or assessments upon the property for the 2014 taxes, the current year and all subsequent years. (D) Purchasers shall not be entitled to the possession of the real estate until the Court's confirmation of the sale and the payment in full of the purchaser price and delivery of the deed unless the Plaintiffs are the purchasers.

(E) Risk of loss of the improvements of the real property shall pass to the purchaser or purchasers at the time of sale. The successful bidders may, (unless otherwise stated at the end of a sale) from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on the improvements on such property to the extent of the court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner of the Powell Circuit Court.

Child Find for Children with Disabilities in Need of Special Education or 504 Services

Child Find

The Powell County School District keeps educational records in a secure location in each school and Board office. The Powell County School District obtains written consent from a parent or eligible student (age 18 or who is attending a postsecondary institution), before disclosing personally identifiable information to an entity or individual not authorized to receive it under FERPA.

For students who have been determined eligible for Special Education, educational records will be destroyed at the request of the parents when they are no longer needed to provide educational programs or services.

Children eligible for Special Education include those children with disabilities who have autism, deaf-blindness, developmental delay, emotional-behavior disability, hearing impairment, mental disability, multiple disabilities, orthopedic impairment, other health impairment, specific learning disability, speech or language impairment, traumatic brain injury, or visual impairment and who because of such an impairment need Special Education services.

Children eligible for 504 services include those children in a public elementary and secondary education program who have a current physical or mental impairment that currently substantially limits some major life activity which causes the student's ability to access the school environment or school activities to be substantially limited.

Children eligible for the State-Funded Preschool program include three and four year old children identified with disabilities and four year old children who are at risk, as defined by federal poverty levels up to 150%. Preschool children eligible for special education must have an Individual Education Plan (IEP) instead of a 504 plan to receive State-Funded Preschool program services.

The Powell County School District has an ongoing "Child Find" system, which is designed to locate, identify and evaluate any child residing in a home, facility, or residence within its geographical boundaries, age three (3) to twenty-one (21) years, who may have a disability and be in need of Special Education or 504 services. This includes children who are not in school; those who are in public, private, or home school; those who are highly mobile such as children who are migrant or homeless; and those who are advancing from grade to grade, who may need but are not receiving Special Education or 504 services.

The district's "Child Find" system includes children with disabilities attending private or home schools within the school district boundaries who may need special education services.

The Powell County School District will make sure any child enrolled in its district who qualifies for Special Education or 504 services, regardless of how severe the disability is provided appropriate Special Education or 504 services at no cost to the parents of the child.

Parents, relatives, public and private agency employees, and concerned citizens are urged to help the Powell County School District find any child who may have a disability and need Special Education or 504 services. The District needs to know the name and age, or date of birth of the child; the name, address, and phone number(s) of the parents or guardian; the possible disability; and other information to determine if Special Education or 504 services are needed.

Letters and phone calls are some of the ways the Powell County School District collects the information needed. The information the school District collects will be used to contact the parents of the child and find out if the child needs to be evaluated or referred for Special Education or 504 services.

If you know of a child who lives within the boundaries of the Powell County School District, who may have a disability, and may need but is not receiving Special Education or 504 services, please call Powell County Board of Education or send the information to:

A glimpse at Times Past...

The Clay City Times July 18, 1929

21st Year

Stanton Academy announces the beginning of the 21st year of this excellent school. It has in these years graduated score of young men and women who owe so much of the best of their lives to the efficient training received at this school. Had this school not been in our county many of our residents who attended this institution would have gone through life with limited schooling. The people of Powell County are indebted to Stanton Academy for its influence of right against wrong, as well as for its educational advantages. Yes, we feel that our people are much improved socially, morally, religiously and educationally because Dr. E.O. Guerrant, now deceased, brought this school 20 years ago to our county. This school stands ready to do even more for our people the next 20 years if they will avail themselves of this opportunity.

To Teach at Hazard

Miss Jane McKinney, graduate University of Kentucky, has been engaged a member of the Faculty Hazard Baptist Institute and will leave her home in Fayette County in September for Hazard where she will take up her duties. Miss McKinney has relatives and friends in this county where she has frequently visited, and is very popular.

Private Water Plant

J.F. Smith & Co. is installing a private pumping station adjoining their store building. They expect to use this plant in keeping down the dust on the highway in front of their store and to be ready for use in case of fire.

Painting Up

Mountz's Garage and the premises about are being painted and otherwise put in a neat appearance. Let the good work proceed.

Bank Report

The Clay City National Bank has statement published in this issue which shows this institution to be in its usual flourishing condition.

Victim of a Prank

David Hughes, 25, of Jenkins, was married there last week. His boy friends took him out to give him ducking, and in their innocent prank, the young groom was drowned. His bride is prostrate.

This should be a lesson to others who are prone to rough play with their best friends. There is a limit to everything, and joking and pranking a friend is no exception.

Delivers New Ford

Joe Mountz the Ford dealer, and Walter Rife were in Cincinnati Monday to get two new cars. They were unable to get but one and this was taken by Mr. Rife. It was a sport model coupe, and a beauty.

Other News

Frank Perley, 24, member of the Boonesboro Orchestra, was drowned Sunday while bathing. His home was at Foreman, Ark. and his body was returned there.

Three men were killed in Pike County Saturday night in the midst of a card game. The fourth was badly wounded.

Mrs. P.S. Elam, who has been very sick, is considerably improved.

Misses Florence Eaton and Nora Lee Howell spent Sunday with Miss Mariba Crabtree.

Undergoes Operation

Mrs. Floyd Wills, formerly of this county, but now with Mr. Wills a resident of Montgomery County, underwent an operation at St. Joseph's Hospital at Lexington July 9 for a tumor of the breast. She was reported as doing well after the operation. The many friends of this excellent lady in this county are anxious to learn of her recovery in due time.

Work on Bridge Progressing

The concrete abutments for the bridge across the mouth of Frame's Branch on the Hardwick's Creek Road are up and ready for the bridge proper. John Kirk, of Clay City, is doing the work, assisted by J.C. Everman. This is an improvement that has been badly needed for years.

The July L&N Magazine

The July issue of the L&N Employees' Magazine is very interesting. It contains many illustrations, some of them from photographs many years old, one of these being a picture of a train and crew at Filson, this county, taken in 1896. G.W. Perkins was conductor; W.F. Atchison, brakeman; James H. Combs, engineer; H.W. Daily, fireman. All of the crew, except Mr. Atchison, are now deceased. Mr. Atchison is the present conductor on the passenger train serving this section of the old L&E.

Lone Oak

One of Lum Allen's children has scarlet fever. We hope he will soon recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Tee Powell and Rev. Robert Taylor and others took dinner with John Pelfrey Sunday.

Our school opened Monday morning with Prof. Faulkner teacher and the outlook for a successful term is fine.

We had a splendid Sunday School last Sunday, 58 present. Rev. Taylor preached an interesting sermon, his text was: "Woe be unto those that preach not the gospel of Christ."

Wm. Pelfrey, the next Jailer of Powell County, and daughters, Misses Ors, Nella, Ella and Ethel attended church and Sunday School here and took dinner with Jesse Lucas Sunday.

Stanton Academy Will Begin its 21st Year August 19, 1929

A "CLASS A" preparatory school fitting pupils for professional courses. Supervised study in both school and dormitories under wholesome conditions. Character building especially emphasized. Excellent equipment in Science Laboratory, Home Economics, and Manual Training. Good reference library. Fine opportunity for training in both Vocal and Piano. English Bible given in course. Opportunities for self help for needy pupils.

Our graduates are making good everywhere.

How about a little dancing?

Looking for something to do on Saturday nights? Have you forgotten about Hoedown Island? It is quite the spot for clogging, line dancing and lots of crowd participation. Just take that short trip to Natural Bridge State Park and cut a rug, so to speak.

We’ve seen changes, but Farmer’s Market up & going

On Tuesday July 7, our world at the Extension office underwent a huge change. Mike Reed retired after 34 years of service. We already feel the great void that his absence has created. He has a lot of plans for new adventures in his retirement and we wish him all the best! Don't be surprised if you see him at the Farmers' Market.

Summer is prime time for shopping at the local farmer's market where it is a great place to find fresh fruits and vegetables, and shopping locally is a great way to ensure that you are buying the highest quality produce and food products while supporting your community.

Shopping at the farmers' market will provide you with the opportunity to cook fruits and vegetables that are at their peak, leaving your recipes bursting with flavor.

When I go to the farmers' market it's very easy for me to purchase more than I can use in a reasonable time so to avoid this I try to plan ahead.

Here are some tips to help you before you visit the farmers' market.

- Before heading to the farmers' market think about what meals you will be preparing within the next week and write your shopping list.
- When you arrive at the farmers' market with your list in hand, make an initial loop around the vendors to see what is being offered and at what price. Some booths will contain higher quality produce at lower prices.
- Get to know the market vendors. They will usually share information about what they are growing and when it will be available.
- Be willing to try something new. Market vendors are often excited to share their recommendations.
- Avoid buying produce with signs of bruising, tears, or soft spots. Produce that is overripe will spoil easily and may leave you throwing out food.

Remember that you will have the largest selection earlier in the day but will likely get the best prices later in the day. While you are at the farmers' market ask the vendors about what they plan on selling in the coming weeks so that you can take advantage of the best deals.

Monday afternoon's storms took out a lot of trees in Powell County. The top pictures show trees down on Upper Paint Creek Road, while the bottom right was in a yard in Clay City and the bottom center was in Stanton. Meanwhile winds blew down some beams in what looks like a garage, damaging a car on Winchester Road. More rains, storms and high winds are expected this week.
